Harvest Season:
Take an Extra
Moment at Railway Crossings

Across the Prairies, harvest means long days, busy rural roads and increased movement of combines, farm equipment and grain trucks.

A railway crossing incident involving a combine near Tisdale, Saskatchewan, on August 28 serves as a timely reminder to take extra care when moving large agricultural equipment across railway tracks.

Farm machinery requires more time to stop and can take longer to completely clear a crossing. Large or low-clearance equipment can also present additional challenges at raised or uneven crossings.

Before crossing, slow down, look and listen in both directions, and make sure there is enough room to completely clear the tracks.

Harvest is demanding, and pressure to keep moving can be high. But no load, schedule or deadline is worth taking a risk at a railway crossing.

Take the extra moment, make sure the tracks are clear, and help everyone get home safely this harvest.

DURING RAIL SAFETY WEEK, WE PARTNERED WITH THE GOVERNMENT OF SASKATCHEWAN TO DISPLAY RAIL SAFETY MESSAGES ACROSS THEIR VARIABLE MESSAGING BOARDS THROUGHOUT THE PROVINCE.
